

Summary

1 Workshop process

- Leah Sertori opened the workshop by asking design group members to reflect on what they have learned so far through the design process.
- The independent facilitators outlined what is expected of design group members at the next leadership group workshop (to present high-level concepts for initial feedback).
- The facilitators reiterated the purpose of today's workshop is to prepare pitches to the leadership group on the high-level concepts developed to date.
- The facilitators introduced an independent illustrator in attendance to draft concept illustrations for use as visual prompts to support concept pitches to the leadership group. It was explained that this approach ensures all ideas are pitched equally and evaluated on the basis of core concepts (rather than specific terminology).
- Each home team presented their pitch and received feedback from the design group:
 - Home team 1 presented ideas that responded to the questions: 'How might we develop a future-proof support system and ensure all Australians benefit from the energy transition?' and 'How might we make energy affordable and accessible for all consumers?'
 - Home team 2 presented ideas that responded to the question: 'How might we ensure that people experiencing vulnerability (including those at heightened risk of experiencing vulnerability) have the right energy supports at the right time?'
 - Home team 3 presented ideas that responded to the questions: 'How might we ensure shared responsibility across the supply chain, other sectors, and other stakeholders?' and 'How might we ensure energy is affordable for all Australians?'
- The design group identified and discussed commonalities across the ideas presented.
- The design group agreed that a consolidated pitch should be developed for presentation to the leadership group. It was agreed that a working group would integrate all home team ideas into this consolidated pitch and work with the illustrator to finalise the concept illustrations.

Key outcome: A working group was formed with volunteers from the design group to develop a consolidated pitch with final illustrations. The secretariat agreed to help coordinate this process.

2 Workshop outputs

- Draft concept illustrations.
- Working group to refine home team pitches into a consolidated pitch with final illustrations.
